DEBATE CURBED
ON BONUS BILL

Measure Being Driven
Toward Speedy Senate Vote Today

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Flatly declaring that the baby bond bonus payment bill will become law whether President Roosevelt vetoes it or not, champions of the measure drove it toward an imminent senate vote today.

Administration leaders swept to passage in the chamber before the day was out. To hasten the vote, the senate agreed that a drastic curb on debate would go into effect in mid-afternoon. Democratic chiefs who favor the bill conceded only 18 votes to the opposition, out of 90-odd expected to be cast.

See Quick Concurrence

Forecasters were heard that the bill, which offers cashable $50 bonds to pay off around $2,000,000 of adjusted service certificates, would gain quick concurrence by the house.

That branch passed a bill last night also providing for full immediate payment of the 1945 maturity value of the certificates, but omitted a method of payment. The senate bill provides that the bonds may be cashed on or after next June 15. Speaker Byrnes has said the house was "in a humor" to accept this bill in place of its own.

Three amendments stood in the way of a final senate vote today—that of Senator Thomas (D. Okla.) authorizing the president to use new currency to discharge the veterans' debt, another by Senator King (D. Utah) to pay only the present or cash surrender value of the certificates, and a third by Senator Schweiker (D. Wash.) providing that bonus receipts shall still be eligible for work relief.

Only the latter had a chance of adoption, administration leaders said.

"Out-Patman Patman Bill"

In urging his amendment late yesterday, Thomas said the bond bill sponsored by Senators Harrison (D. Miss.), Byrne (D. S. C.), Steiwer (R. Ore.) and Clark (D. Mo.) "out-Patman the Patman bill," the inflationary measure vetoed last session.

The Oklahoma said the coalition measure might ultimately cost the government $4,000,000 because of interest charges and other factors. For one thing, he contended, the government might have to borrow under the present bill, to pay interest charges to veterans who elect to hold their bonds as an investment. Such veterans will receive 3 per cent interest until 1945.

Poet-Imperialist Dies In Middlesex Hospital
At Age of 70

TRIBUTES ARRIVE
FROM ALL SIDES

Had Lived, Until Illness
In Retirement In Bur-
wash Village

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Jan. 18.—Rudyard Kipling, Great Britain's famous poet-imperialist, died early today in the Middlesex hospital at the age of 70, sending the empire he set afire with patriotism into widespread mourning.

His body lay later in the day in the same simple bed in a private hospital room which he had occupied since he underwent an emergency operation Monday for a perforated stomach ulcer.

There it was expected to remain until preliminary interment arrangements could be made by Mrs. Kipling.

Tributes From Many Sides

From all sides came tributes to the memory of the poet and novelist, who until his sudden illness had lived for many years in virtual retirement in the quiet village of Burwash, on the age-old Sussex downs.

"One of the most forcible minds of our time has ceased its work," said The Times.

United States Ambassador Robert W. Bingham asserted, "I feel that my rating of Rudyard Kipling is representative of all Americans. He was a great poet, a great prose writer, one of the supreme masters of the English tongue. In the United States he is read and admired throughout the entire country."

For four days, since he was operated on Monday morning, only Kipling's flashing eyes gave evidence of his will to live.

Just before dawn Friday he sank into unconsciousness. Only in the last hours did he seem to recognize his family.

His wife, American born, and his daughter were present at the end, as was his surgeon, Dr. A. E. Webb-Johnson.

Utterly exhausted for more than 48 hours, he succumbed at 12:10 a. m. (7:10 p. m. Friday, in Salem) to complications arising from his operation.

Mrs. Kipling and her married daughter, worn by grief and their long vigil, retired soon afterward, almost in a state of collapse.

Victory Reports
From Ethiopia Are Hailed by Italians

(By Associated Press)
Rome hailed reports of victory from the southern Ethiopian front today in a communique which said the Fascist invaders had advanced 125 miles northward in a week-long running battle.

The high command, on the basis of a report relayed through the northern headquarters, raised its estimate of Ethiopian casualties from 3,000 to 5,000. The official statement did not mention Italian losses.

In addition to defenders who were killed, 3,000 more were taken as prisoners, officials said.

While the southern forces pushed forward, the Duke of Pistoia promised his warriors on the northern front a "decisive battle will be unleashed."

The position of Gen. Rodolfo Graziani's troops in the south was placed near Ringi.

The victory of General Graziani's troops on the Gafale Dorya proved to have yielded increasingly more decisive results, the official communique stated.

"The pursuit continued all day yesterday without meeting any real resistance by the fleeing adversaries. At noon Jan. 17 our armored car columns had advanced altogether about 200 kilometers from their base."

I. Aken of Ashland county, a member of the legislative committee of the state association.

A resolution was adopted urging State Senator Emerson Campbell of this district to support the Willcox bill, which would give the townships five per cent of the state sales tax receipts.

Illness Of King George V
Arouses Alarm In Britain

Oxygen Is Administered to 70-Year-Old Monarch
During Night; Physicians Stand By

By FRANK H. KING

SANDRINGHAM, England, Jan. 18.—The physicians to his majesty, the 70-year-old King George, announced today that anxiety over his condition persisted, after a heart weakness developed from a sudden cold.

One of England's most noted heart specialists was summoned from London to the bedside of the monarch, to join the three physicians already in attendance.

Oxygen Administered
A short time after the specialist, Sir Maurice A. Cassidy, left London by train, it was learned authoritatively that oxygen was administered to the sovereign during the night.

It was hastily explained, however, that oxygen is a modern treatment for a catarrhal condition, such as that suffered by his majesty, and has been administered to the king several times during recent years in fighting that ailment.

The bronchial catarrh was complicated by more serious "signs of cardiac weakness," which even the guarded language of the king's physicians conceded was causing "some disquiet."

After disclosing this development in a bulletin last night, the physicians said today in a statement issued 10:15 a. m. (5:15 a. m. E. S. T.):

"The anxiety expressed in the bulletin of last night persists."

Oxygen was brought to Sandringham house, the royal country estate and the king's favorite palace, yesterday by Lord Dawson of Penn, who with two other of the ruler's physicians spent the night in the palace, ready for instant call.

While the faithful Nurse Black, who was with King George all through his serious illness of 1928 and 1929 remained near his bedside, Lord Dawson of Penn, Sir Frederick Stanley Hewett and Sir Frederick J. Wilkins stayed in rooms not far away.

Williams, who lives at Sandringham, left the palace this morning but Lord Dawson and Hewett remained, awaiting the arrival of Sir Maurice Cassidy.

A number of windows of the large, rambling old royal residence remained lighted all through the snowy, windy night. A bitter east wind whipped the palace grounds this morning.

Snow sprayed from the eaves as villagers and country folk taken by surprise to learn that their beloved monarch was ill, inquired solicitously at the gate concerning his condition.

Special officers were on duty at the gates.

The anxiety of the Norfolk countryside was not less than that throughout the country and the empire.

Thousands of inquiries poured into this little village of 100 persons, about 100 miles northeast of London, seeking news of the monarch, the admiration for whom was already most deep and heightened notably during the last year, especially during the jubilee season, beginning in May, which marked a quarter of a century for King George V on the throne.

The nation and the empire remembered the anxious times seven years ago, when for days, the monarch's life hung in the balance. Two operations to drain fluid from his chest were followed by tense days of waiting, with family and physicians close at hand, before the king won through, and finally recuperated.

Rev. Oelschlager became assistant pastor of the local congregation when it was formed Jan. 12, 1911, in the home of Homer Lipp. He was then stationed at Petersburg, Mahoning county.

The cornerstone of the present edifice was laid Nov. 29, 1914, the building being occupied and dedicated May 30, 1915. On the following Nov. 19, Rev. Oelschlager accepted the call to become the regular pastor of the church, moving to East Palestine on Dec. 27, 1916 and into the present parsonage in February, 1918.

Special services celebrating the pastor's anniversary will be conducted in the local church later.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 18.—Governor Hoffman intensified today his search for other persons besides Bruno Richard Hauptmann who might have been involved in the kidnap-killing of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

Details of the search were kept secret, the governor having announced that in due course he would give his reasons for doubting that any one man could have committed the crime.

Governor Threatened

Possibly the threat of death from which Hauptmann was snatched by reprieve last night, sounded in the ears of the man who saved him.

"Impeachment proceedings represent only one of the threats leveled against me" Hoffman said in defending his granting of a reprieve.

Much mail has come to the 39-year-old executive's desk, especially since his visit to Hauptmann's cell last October. All principals in the case have received threatening and crank letters at one time or another.

The governor's office gave no details, however, of threats other than impeachment.

Hoffman's political foes declined to discuss the possibility of impeachment proceedings. They realized that an impeachment attempt would founder on the rocks of Republican majorities in both branches of the state legislature. The governor is a Republican.

Order Is Issued

Although Hoffman announced his intention to order the state police to continue their search for any other person or persons involved in the crime, no such order had been issued today, as far as could be learned.

Among reports current was one that police of several mid-western cities had been asked to be on the watch for a suspect, not identified. Another said New York police were on the trail of a woman believed to have been an accomplice in the crime.

Jury Awards $15,000
As Damage Verdict

STEBUNVILLE, Jan. 17.—Miss Mabel Stump of Clarksville, W. Va., was given a jury verdict of $15,000 in the common pleas court today. The action grew out of an accident that occurred on Nov. 16, 1930 in front of the Jefferson county Children's home south of Wellsville, when an automobile driven by her uncle, G. D. Stump, was struck by a west bound street car of the Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company.

Miss Stump had sued for $27,000, alleging that she was permanently and totally disabled by reason of the injuries sustained at the time of the accident. The action was against both the driver of the car, G. D. Stump, and the traction company. The petition alleged that the driver of the car was negligent in the operation of the car, and the latter was negligent in striking the car in which she was riding, and that they had the last chance to avoid the accident.

The case was most unusual in that each of the defendants answered, denying their negligence, but alleging that the other defendant was negligent and had caused the accident.

The plaintiff was represented by Atty. Charles McCorkhill of the firm of Metzger, McCorkhill & Metzger, and Atty. Carl Wineman of the John D. Gardner law firm of Steubenville.

Dog License Demand
This Year Greater

The demand for 1936 dog licenses so far this season exceeds applications for the corresponding period last year, John H. Irwin, county auditor, said today.

Over 2,500 licenses have been issued at the Lisbon tax office and it has been estimated that at least 1,500 additional licenses have been issued by the agencies scattered throughout the county.

Effective Tuesday a penalty of $1 will be charged for all licenses issued on and after that date.

Among Organizers of

GIVEN CREDIT FOR

Mrs. Elizabeth Pow Also Prime Mover; Serves
As Secretary

When good folks get together it's always fair weather.

And Price Cope of the Salem-Damascus road, realizing the truth of the old adage, visioned back in 1928 an annual gathering of neighboring farm citizens in Salem.

He talked to others about the plan spoke before meetings in the surrounding granges, secured a favorable following and today, as a result, the Salem Independent Farmers Institute is a well-founded organization.

His annual appearance in the Memorial building here is the highlight of rural activities in farm communities about Salem.

Time For Another Institute

and once again it is time for another institute.

New Wednesday and Thursday, members, families and friends of Perry, Willow Grove, Mt. Nebo, Goshen and Salem granges, as well as city folk, will rally in the Memorial building for the seventh annual institute.

Hundreds are expected to attend. And the leaders of the institute have sent out a special invitation this year to Salem city residents to attend the two-day program.

Among the principal speakers will be John M. Sweeney, former mayor and director under ex-governor George White; and two guest speakers—Mrs. Della Moats of Steubenville, O., and H. E. Stout of Wooster. There will be others.

Price Cope is again chairman of the institute this year.

Desires Cope there are other leaders of the five granges who put their earnest endeavors into the institute work to make it a success.

Among these is Mrs. Elizabeth Pow, secretary of the institute, who is a member of Goshen grange in 1928 when institute plans were first suggested to all of the granges.

Mrs. Pow, one of the leading workers in planning the institute programs from year to year, modestly declines any of the limelight despite her never-failing efforts.

"We all work together on this," she said. "We work together on this," she said. "We work together on this," she said. "We work together on this," she said.

Show Steady Growth

The first meeting of representatives of the five granges was held Nov. 5, 1928, Mrs. Pow recalls.

Since then the institutes have grown steadily," she said. Mrs. Pow has been secretary since the institute was organized.

The Salem business bureau joined the institute group after a year, she said. "The meetings are the assistance of the county extension office, headed by Floyd C. Cramer, Columbiana county agent, and J. P. Schmidt, state superintendent of institutes."

Further aid in the institute program is the result of appointed committees. The lecturers of the day act as a program committee and the grange masters, acting as executive capacity, each make a committee of nine, making total of 45 to assist in the executive work cooperatively.

HOOVER'S NEBRASKA SPEECH

Former President Hoover's speeches continue to be surprising, particularly to Americans who have received from President Roosevelt the impression that his critics have nothing to say. An evidently enthusiastic audience at Lincoln, Neb., Thursday night heard Mr. Hoover say many things which seemed to make better sense than some of the things Mr. Roosevelt has been saying.

There has been made no better characterization of the new deal method of meeting criticism than Mr. Hoover made at Lincoln. It could be used advantageously by every American who is trying honestly to judge the current debate over fundamental issues of government. Mr. Hoover said:

"The new deal has developed a new technique in debate. They set up a glorious ideal to which we all agree unanimously. Then they drive somewhere else or into the ditch. When we protest they blackguard us for opposing the glorious ideal. And they announce that all protestors are the tools of Satan and Wall Street. When we summon common sense and facts they weep aloud over their martyrdom for the ideal."

Who denies that this is being done? President Roosevelt obtained and is striving to maintain popular support for an ideal—the more abundant life for the forgotten man. That ideal is faultless. Yet, every informed citizen knows that between the President's ideal and the practices of the administration there is a chasm so deep and so wide that there literally is no possibility of connecting them. President Roosevelt is not criticized for what he says he wants to do but for what actually is being done. In many instances Mr. Roosevelt cannot be held personally responsible for the defections of his administration, yet he has chosen to defend every part of his record. He denies categorically that other sincere and intelligent men who do not agree with him have any right whatsoever to be heard.

They are continuing to speak, nevertheless, and they will be heard for the simple reason that listeners know they have something to say.

Former President Hoover said things at Lincoln about agriculture which no amount of new deal scoffing and abuse can counteract. As principal spokesman at the moment for an earnest body of American opinion he is performing a distinct and valuable service. His success can be measured by the increasing intemperance of the opposition's tactics. "When we summon common sense and facts they weep aloud over their martyrdom for the ideal."

Safe and Well

Intensive rescue efforts in behalf of Lincoln Ellsworth and Herbert Hollick-Kenyon finally have rewarded. The whole world was glad to hear Friday that the research ship Discovery II had found both men safe and well at the Bay of Whales.

Their flight across Antarctica, which ended in silence when their gasoline supply gave out within walking distance of Little America, base of the Byrd expeditions, was successful. Had it not been for prompt and intelligent attempts to find the two explorers, however, their adventure might have ended in fatal tragedy.

Antarctica, despite the Byrd expeditions, still is a fearsome place to the armchair explorers who do their adventuring with newspaper and radio. Perhaps Mr. Ellsworth and Mr. Hollick-Kenyon really were in no great danger at all. Nevertheless, to soft-brethren who worry about stepping outside without overshoes and mufflers and who are desperate if noontime catches them more than a mile or two from a restaurant or the family board, it necessarily seems they have survived an amazing amount of danger.

In the meantime, it seems safe to guess the two explorers, having survived, have no thought but for their success in flying from Dundee Island to Little America without serious mishap. The world's worry probably won't impress them until they return to it.

THE STARS SAY

For Sunday, January 19

Sunday's horoscope holds auguries of some success, with the favoritism or marks of preferment from superiors or employers. But there is also a sign of this friendly spirit being offset by indulgence in rash, quarrelsome and impulsive personal conduct. Also there is a hint of treachery, so be cautious and controlled.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of good opportunity for success and progress, but this prospect may be placed in jeopardy by rash, impulsive and quarrelsome conduct. With restraint, alertness to duplicity or fraud, there is prospect of promotion, honors or preferment from those in high places.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, talented and ambitious but disposed to be rash, headstrong and impetuous. These should be curbed and it will find high favor with employers and those in authority.

For Monday, January 20

Monday's astrological forecast is a very conflicting one, judging by the lunar transits. There is excellent promise of attaining high favoritism from those in power, with hearty support of important projects, but there are also auguries of disruption, treachery, delays and reversals. With acumen, restraint and precaution, much depends on the individual choice and determination.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves launched in a year in which much depends on individual sagacity, precaution and determination. There are excellent auguries for success and the friendly auguries of those in important positions. But at the same time there are loopholes for treachery, upheaval and postponements of cherished objectives.

A child born on this day may be versatile, with fine character and noble ambitions, yet will be subject to treachery and depressions.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—I notice the restaurant called The Flying Trapeze has given up its name. It may have been an excellent eatery. I wouldn't know. But the name was too prophetic. Most of us dining out have been expecting any day to have a flying trapezist kerplop in our soup.

If one has ever missed half a Kirsten Flagstad aria because the moron behind insisted on eating peanut brittle with a defective plate, there should be an appreciation of how a hungry New Yorker feels when the draft from an adagio dance turns his steaming onion soup into consommé gelé.

Too many cooks may spoil the broth in the kitchen but in many dining rooms it's something else. More than once I've poised a fork for an exquisite jab into a noisette de veau when swish! all lights flashed out. Except a baby spot for a hussey who could sing as well in the dark.

There are restaurants—the Ritz, Colony and Monetta's, for instance—where the cuisine is such there is no need to divert attention. Food itself takes the center of the stage and the bows. One does not have to bring along a flashlight and chafing dish. Only an appetite.

Expert pampering of a robust appetite is one of the agreeable arts. Such as the studied expectancy of a waiter captain slowly lifting the silver covering from the entree. Or anticipating the want of a condiment. Or the magic whisking away of bones from fish or fowl just as they begin to look mussy. Dining with Ray Long, Leon Gordon, and Otis Ralston in shadowy Foyot's one evening I glanced up inquiringly at a waiter, trying to think of the name of a meat sauce I had run across for the first time the day before. He bounded off to one of those 17th century block-long sideboards and returned with it. Rather conclusive proof of mental telepathy.

The calloused agnostic cannot visit the Cathedral of St. John the Divine without experiencing exalted reverence. More than any other structure in town it mitigates by vastness the specious charge of metropolitan indifference to the spiritual. Nowhere in the scatter-brained storm of complex city living is the inevitable vortex of calm so pronounced. The vaulted corridors, cool colonnades, stately pillars, all tinged by the roseate glow from serene figures lead into lofty windows, blend an aura of mysticism that lends to grey stone a very soul. One can almost behold the materially warped expanding spiritually as they enter.

I'm hankering for a musical movie or stage show with an all Dutch background—windmills. Vollen-dam costumes, taffy braids, swiny waltzes, the tick-tock of wooden shoes and lyrical nuances that symbolize the ebb and flow of the Zuyder Zee. My enduring worship of Christie MacDonalld was incubated by her performance in "Miss Hook of Holland." Many nights I perched high in the gallery overwhelmed by the futilities of a calf love and the irony of being an $18-a-week reporter. A few years ago at Laura Cobb's I met Miss MacDonalld, whom the years brush over so lightly. The gold of callow idolatry had not tarnished in a closeup. I would still like to be sitting up yonder as she skipped to the footlights, arms akimbo, clogs in light tap, thrilling us with a voice that seemed to lick out like the forks of a clear white flame.

In the next block is a saintly J. M. Barrie type whose gracious acts may never be frescoed in windows or inspire a shaft to beacon his goodness. Yet he goes his way, aiding those in need and without hope of reward, a pinion of faith. This morning he was distressed. An acquaintance, a writer I'm sorry to say, he had befriended, robbed him of quite a sum. "If only I can keep it from his wife and daughter," he said. Thought of revenge had never entered his head.

THIRTY YEARS AGO
(Issue of Jan. 18, 1906)

East Palestine—For the second time within four years the post office at East Palestine has been broken into. The office was entered at an early hour this morning, the safe blown open by nitroglycerin and stamps and cash taken amounting to between $200 and $300.

W. R. Woods, well known blacksmith of Beloit, has sold his shop to Thomas Boyle, who will continue the business.

J. B. Kay, who has just been appointed to membership on the board of public safety, was sworn in Wednesday by Mayor Al Carlisle.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.
(Issue of Jan. 18, 1916)

Employees in the pattern shop of the Buckeye Engine Co., were laid off Tuesday and the shop was idle during the day as a result of the refusal of the men to work a 10-hour day. They have formed a union and for some time have been under a nine-hour schedule.

The average cost per year of educating pupils in the public schools is only $34, according to figures compiled by Clerk Albert Hayes. The average is much less than in many other cities.

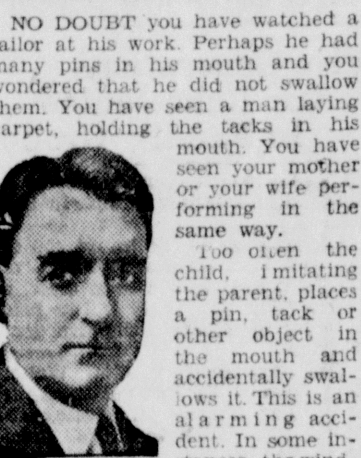

The proposition that the government do something for poets gets no farther. We doubt if the taxpayer would stand for boon-doggerel.—Tacoma Ledger.

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

Dr. Copeland

NO DOUBT you have watched a tailor at his work. Perhaps he had many pins in his mouth and you wondered that he did not swallow them. You have seen a man laying carpet, holding the tacks in his mouth. You have seen your mother or your wife performing in the same way.

Two often the child, imitating the parent, places a pin, tack or other object in the mouth and accidentally swallows it. This is an alarming accident. In some instances the wind-pipe becomes obstructed and the patient suffers agony. All too often instantaneous death is caused by the attempt to swallow some large object.

Sometimes the swallowed material is small, but has sharp and pointed edges. In consequence it may pierce the gullet or even the stomach or intestine. Severe internal injuries are caused in this way. Usually the object is passed without any damage or discomfort.

Because of this accident children are daily brought to hospitals for treatment. Let us be honest with ourselves and admit that this is all due to carelessness in placing the small objects, such as pins, buttons, marbles or very small toys, within reach of the little ones.

Avoid Bad Example

No habit can be worse than that of placing pins and other objects in the mouth. There is always the danger of swallowing them. Besides, it sets a bad example. Children love to mimic their elders. If you place pins in your mouth in the presence of your child, he will be tempted to do the same thing.

Sometimes this accident is caused by carelessness in the preparation of the food and its feeding to the child. When serving a food like fish to a youngster, make sure the bones are removed. Avoid joking and hearty laughter at the table while eating such foods.

Fortunately, foreign bodies can now be removed without a cutting operation. By foreign bodies I mean such objects as bones, pins and other substances that may lodge in the gullet or wind pipe. Their removal is now successfully accomplished by means of a special instrument called the "bronchoscope."

Foreign Body Menace

This instrument was first used as far back as 1897. But it is only within recent years that it has been perfected by equipment with special electric lamps. In a sense the bronchoscope is like the periscope of a submarine. It enables the doctor accurately to locate the swallowed object, grasp it and remove it. Its use has materially reduced the mortality and complications which follow the swallowing of foreign bodies.

A foreign body is a source of danger until it has been recovered. Its presence should never be ignored. Even though there may be pain in removing it, it must be done. In every such case consult the doctor. The x-ray pictures should be taken because they show the exact location of the offending object.

New Navy Chief Popular Choice

Admiral Reeves

Admiral Hepburn

A man who is a combination of diplomat, engineer and naval authority will become commander-in-chief of United States navy next June when Admiral Joseph M. Reeves is retired. Vice Admiral Arthur Japy Hepburn brings to his new position a background of experience and training which should admirably qualify him for his important new position—doubly important in view of plans for naval expansion and the uncertain status of the international ratio. Hepburn was born in Carlisle, Pa., graduated from the naval academy in 1897, served with distinction in the Spanish-American war, and won the Distinguished Service medal for his command of U. S. sub-chasers off the Irish coast during the World war. He is married and has two sons and is regarded as one of the most popular commanders in recent years.

The Dividends

Referring again to the dividends which this institution has paid on its savings accounts, these ninety-three separate dividends, added together, reach a total of more than twenty-three million dollars which this company has added to the savings of its constituents. Not many institutions have been privileged to add so large a sum as this to the wealth of its community.

WIFE IN CUSTODY by BEATRICE LUBITZ

CHAPTER XL

When Dirk reached his office he found there a message from Irene that she was coming to New York that day and would meet him at eight o'clock that evening in their apartment.

"She mustn't come in today," he told his secretary. "It's much too hot. Get my house, please."

But Irene had already left. He called the apartment but there was no answer. There was nothing to do but obey her summons unless he could get in touch with her during the day. He tried to get Irene again before he ate a solitary dinner at his deserted club. At eight he took a taxi to their apartment.

The heat hung in the air like a pall. It was a thick, moist heat that seemed to choke one. Gasoline fumes hung nauseatingly over the road. Cars sped by hoping in their speed to circulate air. Dirk sprawled on the grimy seat of the open taxi. The leather was still hot from the baking sun. Dirk's thin linen suit pasted itself to the sticky leather seat.

He thought of the ocean at Long Beach and he felt a furious resentment at Irene for summoning him here to meet her tonight. Park Avenue was deserted except for a few stragglers leading dogs. Dirk fanned himself with his hat as the elevator shot up to the fourteenth floor. He let himself in with his latchkey. The apartment was cool but airless. The smell of camphor hung in the air. The living room was dark but as he reached for the light he saw Irene sitting in a linen-covered chair.

"Hello, why are you sitting in the dark?"

He switched on the light. He had the impression that she had been sitting there for a long time. She wore a loose silk negligee that she had evidently found in the apartment but even this was too hot and she had opened it and thrown it back, displaying her superb figure in a lace brassiere and lace corset.

He noticed then, when she did not return his greeting, that she was as ghastly white as the linen slipcover against which she leaned her head. Her face was covered with a fine sweat, her eyes were closed. The thick fringe of her lashes threw a deeper shadow against the hollows of her white cheeks.

"Are you ill, Irene?" He came toward her to feel her forehead. "Don't touch me," she whispered hoarsely.

"What's the matter, Irene?"

"I know everything."

"You know everything? Everything about what?"

"Don't lie to me. At least be good enough to tell me the truth," she cried passionately.

"I don't know what you're talking about." He stood looking down at her.

She suddenly sprang to life. "You don't! She raced her eyes wide open now, her fists clenched.

Dirk was filled with a sudden fury. He had a desire to dig his nails into her white throat and shoulders and to tear the flesh. He clenched his fists.

"You must be out of your mind," he said quietly.

"Out of my mind, eh? It's a wonder I'm not. Maybe I am. I could kill you so easily if I had something to do it with. You speaking, whitelivered hypocrite. You, with your fine ethics. Your family and background. Gentleman! Ha, Ha," she laughed bitterly. "You've humiliated me and lied to me." Her voice broke.

"For God's sake, Irene, what are you driving at? Have you gone mad with the heat?"

"Mad with the heat! You ask me that? I found out. I've found out about you and her. Doesn't your conscience prick you the least bit? Are you a man or some kind of beast? You ask me if I'm mad with the heat! You lying, cheating skunk!"

He grabbed her shoulder now. "Look here, what are you talking about?" he demanded sternly. "Either you speak up and lay off your street gamin epithets or I'll walk out. What is the matter with you?"

"You needn't try outwitted virtue on me. I know now what's been going on between you and my brother's wife."

He dropped her shoulder and turned white. She saw the effect on him and she followed it up with a cackling laugh. "Ah, you didn't think I'd ever find out, did you? You thought because you pulled that pose of a gentleman you could pull the wool over my eyes indefinitely. Gentleman — rat!" she snarled.

"You're wrong," she said finally. "You're dead wrong."

"Oh, I am, am I? Perhaps you will deny that you've been running out to her every night this summer! Perhaps you'll deny that you saw her off to Europe; perhaps you'll deny that you've been seeing her nearly every evening here in town, using your mother's house to cover up your liaisons!"

"Irene, you're working yourself up to a frenzy over nothing. I went out to Long Beach every night because Walter insisted on it. I've gone out every evening with him."

"You would be sure he was along, you lying skunk, to cover it up for you just as you used your own mother to cover up your affair here in New York."

"Be careful, Irene, of what you're saying. I'm making allowances for your idiotic accusations because of the heat but there's a limit to what I'll listen to."

"Don't you threaten me! You're going to hear all I've got to say, do you hear!"

Dirk looked at her in a sort of horror. Her throat was throbbing in her rage. Every vein stood out straining against her thin white skin. Her eyes were glittering. Two pulsing veins showed out of her forehead.

"Irene," he cried involuntarily, "what are you doing to yourself? You are mad. Somebody has been telling you the rottenest lies."

"Lies!" she interrupted him. "Truths! Oh, it all fits in so nicely. I've checked it and rechecked it all. She wouldn't go to Bound Brook where the family is. Oh, no, she had to be alone in Long Beach so that she could have her lover come out with that dupe her husband. You are her lover," she shrieked.

"How little you know me," Dirk said quietly.

"Know you, eh? I know you and I know her. That white-faced, sneaking little bum."

"Superb, Irene, superb. Your vocabulary does your breeding full justice."

"Don't you dare sneer at my breeding. What are you with all your breeding? You come into my brother's house as a guest and love his wife. I know. I know all. You could be so foul. I did go to Florida, and then she sent for my brother to blind his eyes."

"I never knew any woman's mind could be so foul. I did go to Florida. Yes, I spent one day with Helen trying to persuade her not to leave your brother."

Irene burst into wild laughter. "I'd like to believe that! She'd leave my brother! Not that baby! She

Tunnel opening near Gauley Bridge

Tunnel workers

Prospects of a congressional inquiry into the mysterious deaths of more than 200 men working on a hydro-electric power project tunnel, top, near Gauley Bridge, W. Va., loomed following demands of Congressman Marcantonio, N. Y., for an investigation. In case of investigation, Dr. L. R. Harless, inset, would be one of the principal witnesses since it was his diagnosis which labeled the mysterious malady as silicosis, a form of lung disease caused by inhaling particles of quartz dust. Pictured below is a group of the tunnel workers, some of whom have died months after quitting their jobs since the disease gradually breaks down the resistance of the strongest man.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By Jeanette Young Norton

Here's how to keep your New Year's resolution, the one that pertains to keeping down your budget without decreasing the quality or quantity of food that you serve to your family.

So we have gathered together an excellent group of lowest-cost dishes, all of them good pocketbook pals. Rice is a real food-friend, as is the thrifty bean, "store" cheese and winter vegetables. So here we go into a grand 1936 year of a new high in health and happiness, with the aid of these kitchen comrades.

For a tasty luncheon loaf, combine one cup cooked rice, one egg, two tablespoons chopped onion, one cup crushed peanuts, one cup cottage cheese, one tablespoon shortening, one teaspoon salt and half teaspoon pepper. Bake in loaf pan in moderate oven (350 F.) for 30 minutes. This will make six servings.

Chili Handy Dish

Right here is as good a time as any to offer a good chili con carne, a recipe that has been requested by many readers. Soak one cup kidney beans overnight in cold water. Drain and cook until tender in boiling salted water. Brown one pound of beef that has been cut into small pieces, in two tablespoons cooking oil, add one can pimientos and quarter cup minced onion, and fry until light brown. Add one cup tomato pulp, one teaspoon paprika, salt to taste and one cup of water and simmer until meat is tender. Add chili powder to taste. Drain beans and add to meat. Serve it surrounded by hot rice for the main dish.

Another grand, nourishing dish is made with onions and rice. Pare six or eight onions under water and parboil until tender, changing water once. Make a sauce, melting two tablespoons butter, adding two tablespoons flour, one teaspoon salt, a dash of pepper, and one cup of milk. Cook mixture until smooth. Add three-quarters of a cup of grated

Two Jailed on Girl's Charges

Georgia Louisa Turner

Civic organizations of Clarksburg, W. Va., launched a vice crusade against dance halls and beer gardens of the city following sensational charges of Georgia Louisa Turner, 19-year-old high school beauty and alleged victim of an attack by two men who were jailed. Several hours after going for a ride with the two men, one an internal revenue agent, she staggered into her rooming house, bruised and battered, to tell a hysterical story of mistreatment.

Legion Auxiliary Convenes Here

Americanism and national defense were topics of interest last night at the meeting of the Columbiana county council of the American Legion auxiliary at the post home here.

Mrs. Charles Roller of Columbiana read a paper on Americanism prepared by the chairman of that department, saying that a definite contribution to the purity and permanency of America is the dominant spirit of the Legion's program of Americanism. The three objectives of that division are education, work with the foreign born and community service.

Mrs. Harry Lundgren of Columbiana, national defense chairman, gave a talk on the problem of national defense and pointed out that the Legion is working for the maintenance of an adequate national defense for America.

Mrs. Mabel McCausland of East Palestine was appointed as community service chairman for the next meeting of the county council March 6 at Columbiana.

Games were enjoyed after the meeting and the Salem auxiliary served a lunch.

Mrs. Joseph Meier Club Hostess

Mrs. Joseph Meier entertained associates of the Sunshine society Thursday afternoon at her home on the Georgetown rd. Mrs. Mary Hoopes opened the meeting with a Bible reading which was followed by group singing. Mrs. Jessie Whitton had charge of the program of contests and games. ## Theater Attractions

Fred MacMurray, Claudette Colbert and Robert Young who will be seen in "Here Comes the Bride" at the State theater Sunday and Monday.

The State theater's program for the coming week is made up of several hits.

"The Bride Comes Home" starts the week off with a bang. This picture, starring Claudette Colbert and Fred MacMurray, will be shown Sunday and Monday. Critics have been loud in their praise of this comedy, better, some say, than "It Happened One Night."

She Gets a Job

Miss Colbert portrays a daughter of an impoverished financier. She obtains a job in a publishing house. Fred MacMurray is the editor who resents society girls working and especially resents Miss Colbert. Robert Young plays a wealthy young man in love with Miss Colbert. She finally accepts his offer of marriage and they elope, pursued by the desperate MacMurray who now loves the woman. The dialog is clever and the situations natural.

A double bill is featured for Tuesday and Wednesday. George Arliss as a lovable vagabond in "Mister Hobo" is the main attraction with the co-feature a light romantic drama entitled "Freshman Love." This college film has Warren Hull, Patricia Ellis, Frank McHugh and George E. Stone in the cast.

Robert Donat, who has been away from the screen far too long, comes to the State Thursday only in the excellent film, "The 39 Steps." Donat will be remembered for his performance in "The Count of Monte Cristo." Madeleine Carroll plays opposite the English star.

O'Neill's Drama Coming

Eugene O'Neill's great drama of American youth and its temptations, "Ah Wilderness," will be presented at the State Friday and Saturday. The starring cast includes Wallace Berry, Lionel Barrymore, Aline McMahon, Cecilia Parker and Eric Linden, who makes his comeback to pictures after a long absence.

"King of Burlesque" will be shown tonight for the last time at the State. This is Warner Baxter's last musical hit.

The Grand theater has a double feature scheduled for Sunday and Monday. "Were Only Human," with Preston Foster and Jane Wyatt, is the first film.

The English production of "Alias Bulldog Drummond," starring Jack Hulbert and Fay Wray, is the other feature. It will be remembered Fay Wray went to England to make pictures when they first started to hire American stars. It is reported she does very good work under English direction.

Tonight at the Grand may be seen Charles Starrett in "Gallant Defender."

Winona Methodist Episcopal Church

Organized In Fall Of 1895

Prior to 1895 there were in Winona two established churches, the Wilbur Friends and the Gurney Friends.

However, a number of people in this vicinity were of a different denomination and were going long distances to church. Some, who were attending these churches, felt in their hearts that they would enjoy and that they really needed their own church home. Oliver and Sina Bundy drove to Salem to church for five years before a Methodist church was established in Winona.

In the fall of 1895 after much agitation and work which precedes an undertaking of this kind, Dr. Earl D. Holtz, the presiding elder, came to Winona, probably in the month of November, and organized a Methodist church.

There were 16 charter members and it is believed the following list is correct: Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Bundy and Lawrence; Mr. and Mrs. Jason Galbreath and Marion; Mr. and Mrs. Seth Moore and George; Mr. and Mrs. John Kaminsky, Mary and Cora Kaminsky; Luella and Iva Yates, Howard Whinery.

The members met every two weeks in the W. C. T. U. hall and paid the Union 25 cents rental for each Sunday.

Rev. C. L. Bowland was the first pastor. The organ was purchased for $10 from the Salem Methodist church and the latter organization gave the Winona church hymnals also.

Rev. George Wells conducted the church's first revival meetings, held during November of 1897.

William and Nora Taylor were the first converts in this meeting and the following May, they were received into the membership of the church.

Sunday school services were held first on Feb.

16, 1896. Jason Galbreath was superintendent and Ida Yates was secretary.

Just when plans for a new church originated is not known, but the first definite step in that direction was taken when Rev. J. Taylor Alton and a little group of 10 women met one afternoon in the old church and organized a Ladies Aid society for the express purpose of starting a building fund.

The women present were as follows: Laura Stamp, president; Nora Taylor, secretary; Emma Walton, Ida Kuhl, Minta Camp, Nora Frederick, Ella Wagar, Amanda Coppock, Lucy Willson and Sina Brantingham.

A decision was reached subsequently whereby a new church would be built at a cost not to exceed $3,500 in money. Subscriptions were solicited and ranged from 50 cents to $100.

The building committee was composed of Cora Cope, Laura Stamp, Lee Camp, Frank Frederick and John W. Kuhl.

The contract was let to Brint Thomas. The actual work was begun in 1912 and the church was dedicated May 25, 1913. It is estimated that the church cost approximately $4,800, counting cash and work donated.

Several changes have been made since then. New windows have replaced the old. The basement has been finished and is equipped with a modern kitchen and is arranged to more conveniently accommodate social gatherings.

Electric lights have been installed and the church has been redecorated. Some work has been done outside also to beautify the surroundings and provide parking space.

In June of 1935, Rev. Glenroy Shoup was appointed pastor of this church to succeed Rev. A. R. Anderson.

Rev. Leroy Henne is the present pastor.

New Officers To Be Installed Sunday At Emmanuel Lutheran Church

Will Take Over New Duties During Divine Worship Service of Church Tomorrow

The newly elected officers of the Emmanuel American Lutheran church will be installed at the divine worship service of the church tomorrow.

Rev. John Bauman, pastor, announced today.

The complete services for tomorrow, announcements for the week, and a brief article on "The Sense of Values" follows:

"A Sense of Values"

"It is difficult to understand the reasoning process of a man who will pay the strictest attention to the needs of his body but will persistently neglect his soul. Many a man carefully nourishes himself physically but starves himself spiritually. His temporal welfare is to him a matter of grave concern but his spiritual well-being troubles him not at all. But life is just a short span of time, and the most important question for any man to consider is: 'Where shall I spend my eternity?' We are travelers on a short journey. God has given us traveling directions in His Word. We are just hopeless drifters unless we follow these directions. We dare not reach the end of the road in a state of spiritual bankruptcy. Jesus asks: 'What is a man profited if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?' You and yours are invited to come to our services and hear God's traveling directions."

Nazarene Church Services Sunday

"Life" is the subject of the lesson sermon which will be read at the morning worship of the Christian Science Society church tomorrow.

Sunday school for pupils up to the age of 20 years will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow while on Wednesday the regular mid-week service will be held at the church at 8 p. m.

The Golden Text for tomorrow is: "This is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son." (1 John 5:11)

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "The fear of the Lord tendeth to life: and he that hath it shall abide satisfied; he shall not be visited with evil." (Prov. 19:23)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "There is no power apart from God. Omnipotence has all-power and to acknowledge any other power is to dishonor God. The humble Nazarene overthrew the supposition that sin, sickness, and death have power. He proved them powerless." (p. 228).

Brown Bomber Stops Retzlaff With K.O. In First Round of Battle

Louis Sends North Dakota Farmer to Mat For Final Count After One Minute and 25 Seconds of Heavyweight Fight

By WILLIAM WEEKES, Associated Press Sports Writer.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—They found a fighter game enough to slug with Joe Louis, but not anywhere near good enough to keep the spectacular Brown Bomber from achieving his 23rd, and quickest, knockout triumph.

The victim was strapping Charley Retzlaff from the North Dakota wheat country. He lasted just one minute and 25 seconds of the first round before going down and out under the Detroit Negro's stunning punches last night in the Chicago stadium. A crowd of 16,486 saw Retzlaff keep his promise to try to make a fight of it, only to be completely outclassed.

Louis' latest triumph was much like other recent spectacular victories, except that it didn't require as much time.

The Bomber, sticking to his plan of ending it as quickly as possible, devoted about a minute to figuring Retzlaff out. The remaining seconds saw the six foot, three inch farmer from the northwest go down twice under merciless, methodical punishment.

Makes First Gesture

The crowd broke into a roar as Retzlaff strode out and made the first offensive gesture, a straight left that failed to reach its mark. Louis poked an experimental left into Retzlaff's face, but the customers screamed again as the condemned fighter let go with his famous right.

The blow appeared to have knocked Louis out, but he was not. He had moved inside, causing Retzlaff's arm to curl harmlessly around his neck.

Then the cheers for Retzlaff's courage arose for the last time as the rawboned farmer tore in swinging with both hands. Louis, his face as expressionless as the dial of a dollar watch, backed into the ropes, then slipped away to the center of the ring.

From there on everyone realized what was about to happen. Louis smashed a left hook to the chin that sent Retzlaff down. Retzlaff, instinctively courageous, struggled up at the count of seven.

The Finish
Benumbed and rubbery legged, he attempted to back away as Louis, knowing it was no longer necessary to defend himself, glided in for the finish. A storm of short, deadly punches hung Retzlaff over the ropes and a final right and left to the head sent him to the floor. He didn't move until the timekeeper tolled out "nine", then made a futile effort to get his legs under him. They couldn't help him and he rolled on his side as the count ended.

Louis' first appearance of the year produced gross receipts of $67,826.66. Louis' share was 40 per cent of the gate, radio and motion picture "take" Retzlaff settled for 17 1/2 per cent of the gate receipts.

Failure of the attendance to reach expected proportions was due to a large extent to a heavy snow which started to fall about two hours before doors were opened.

Win 12 Games

The Bohunks gained the first round championship by winning 12 games and losing three. The Irish finished in second position with 11 victories and four defeats.

YANKIES GET ROY JOHNSON

Obtain Former Washington Player in Two-For-Two Swap

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The Yankees, who have not succeeded in obtaining much-desired infield reinforcements, finally have acquired a left-handed hitter to round out their outfield forces. He is Roy Johnson, obtained from Washington yesterday in a two-for-two swap.

The trade also involved Jesse Hill, a speedy outfielder but a right hander and Jimmy De Shong, relief hurler, who go to the Senators, and Irving (Bump) Hadley, veteran flinger who comes to the Yankees along with Johnson.

Joe McCarthy, Yankee manager, has been eyeing Johnson since he got into difficulty last summer with Joe Cronin, Boston manager. He couldn't swing a deal with the Red Sox, however, and the player was sent to Washington with Carl Reynolds in the trade for Heinie Manush.

Complete For Places

Johnson, who batted 315 for the Red Sox last year, is slated to compete with George Selkirk, regular right fielder last year, and young Jos Di Maggio for the two available places in the Yankee outfield. Ben Chapman is considered a fixture in center.

Both DeShong, who formerly hurried for the Athletics, and Hill are expected to do better in their new surroundings. The pitcher may benefit by the opportunity to work more regularly, while Hill should get more hits in Griffith stadium, where the shorter left field fence provides a better target than the Yankee stadium barrier.

The Giants also entered the player mart, disposing of a couple of pitchers to the Braves. Jim Chaplin, who had several trials in New York, and Sharkey Eiland, a young and promising southpaw, went to Boston. Both played for Nashville in the Southern association last year.

Pukalski's Long Shot In Closing Minute Of Game Brings Victory

Win Halts Salem High Losing Streak of Three Games And Gives It a Record to Date of Four Victories and Three Defeats

The Salem High school Quakers and Alliance High Aviators packed action into four quarters of basketball to stage a real "old time thriller" at the High school gymnasium last night... and the Quakers came out on top, 22 to 20.

It was one of those contests where anything is liable to happen, and that's just what occurred. One minute to play, the score tied at 20-all, fans standing on their seats with excitement, and out of a scramble came Eddie Pukalski, Red and Black guard and acting captain, to connect on a long range shot from near mid-floor that was so perfect

Rudy Ball, Hockey Star, Lone Jewish Olympic Representative

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany, Jan. 18.—Rudy Ball, German non-aryan ice hockey player, has returned here from Paris and Milan self-exile to become a star of Germany's Olympic team at the invitation of the Reich sports leader, Capt. Hans Von Tschammer Osten.

He is Germany's sole Jewish Olympic representative thus far. Rated as the nation's best hockey player, he came here a fortnight ago. His appearance became known generally only today when he appeared suddenly as a driving power for the National Olympic squad.

In a training match between the Olympic team and another picked team, strengthened by three Canadian professionals, Ball scored one goal and paved the way for a second.

He had left the country for France and Italy when the Nazis started their anti-semitic campaign, leaving behind him a weakened national team which had never regained its old power, despite the efforts of Canadian trainers.

Cincinnati Mayoralty Fight Puts Bigelow Into Headlines

New Chapter in Stormy Career of Fiery Independent Written When Council Deadlocked

Mayor Russell Wilson

Herbert S. Bigelow

International Illustrated News Writer

CINCINNATI—When Herbert S. Bigelow, independent councilman, evangelist and follower of the Rev. Charles Coughlin recently made the headlines by deadlocking the councilman election of a mayor, it was not the first time he had been in the news.

Bigelow has had a hectic and colorful career during the years he has engaged in a score of crusades, battling for widely divergent causes.

His efforts are now bent on fighting the utilities and it was to this end—to obtain municipal power or TVA power for Cincinnati—that Bigelow deadlocked the mayoralty election until the Charterites gave him assurance that he would head the council utility committee. Cincinnati has a city manager and operates under a charter form of government which provides for election of a mayor from among the nine council members.

"Mayor is Political Parsley"

Bigelow held the balance of power in council which was split, four and four, between Republicans and Charterites. When his demands were granted by the Charterite faction, he sided with them to elect Russell Wilson to his third term. Wilson's election brought protests from Republicans and demands that he resign because of the "deal" reported made between their four council members and Bigelow.

"A mayor is only a ceremonial figure, a sort of political parsley to adorn ceremonial dinners," said Bigelow, commenting on the deadlock.

Bigelow was born in Elkhart, Ind., and attended Oberlin college where he studied for the ministry. He went to Cincinnati in 1896 as pastor of the Vine street church. He had been there but a short time when he became the storm center of a controversy aroused when the church walls were inscribed with the sayings of Count Tolstol and Henry George as well as those of Jesus Christ.

When Bigelow leased his church to a theater company he was ousted from the Congregational ministry and has since confined his preaching to evangelistic activities.

He's a Single Taxer

When the Ohio constitutional convention was called in 1912, sponsoring initiative home rule and the referendum, Bigelow was president.

Another chapter in his unusual career was written in 1917 when he was beaten by a masked gang "in the name of Belgium's women and children" when he spoke in Kentucky. He has been identified with the pacifist cause and has been an active advocate of world peace.

When Cincinnati adopted a charter form of government in 1921, Bigelow was one of the champions of the reform which has given Cincinnati the reputation of having one of the best governments of any city in United States. C. A. Dykstra, city manager, is credited with having been largely responsible for giving Cincinnati an exemplary government.

Of late Bigelow has turned his attention to Rev. Coughlin's National League for Social Justice, the single tax and municipal power development. He recently announced his intention of carrying his crusade for those principles throughout the state of Ohio.

Senators Discuss Neutrality

The question of whether the proposed embargo against belligerent nations in time of war should be mandatory or left to the discretion of the president was one of the main issues discussed at the conference of the senate foreign relations committee, left to right, seated, William Borah, Key Pittman and Joseph Robinson, with Arthur Vandenberg standing between Borah and Pittman.
